Building Healthy Places Award

Relay Bikeshare

Launched in June 2016, Relay Bikeshare is Atlanta's first bike sharing program. To date, the program has attracted over 5,000 riders and 40,000 trips. Relay has given Atlantans an alternative transportation option, promotes healthy living, and closes the last mile connectivity gap. The successful public-private partnership between Cyclehop and the City of Atlanta has helped Relay expand from 100 bikes at 22 stations to 500 bikes at 65 stations in less than a year. Relay is filling an important role in the city's long-term sustainability plan and an extension of the city's public transportation vision.
